Obey the Law in Police Courts-Male Probation Officers Shirk Work—An other Night Court Is Wanted

When Magistrate Droege was removed last January by the Appellate Division on charges that improperly he had re-leased on probation prisoners he had committed to the workhouse, it was also shown that these prisoners had paid fees to certain individuals for their release.

Mayor McClellan thereupon ordere the Commissioners of Accounts to make an investigation of the affairs of the night court. It was from this court that the cases named in the complaint against Droege were committed.

The report of the commission was made public yesterday. It asserts that Magistrates have no power to discharge prisoner committed under the "cumu tive sentence law" until after twenty days have elapsed from the time of sen tence and that a Magistrate has no power to discharge or release any one from prison "on probation." The report also says that even when a Magistrate discharges a prisoner under the cumulative sentence law he is required to file in the court with the original application the jurisdictional certificate and the affidavit facts in justification.

The Commissioners of Accounts in their inquiry found that without a single ex-ception the Magistrates of the First Division failed to observe the require ments of the law.
"While it is true," the Commissioner

my, "that we have found that in occastonal instances certain papers in the nature of evidence in support of the Magistrate's action were filed with the complaint, these were not in the form required by the statute, and in the vast jority of cases of prisoners discharged Magistrates after commitment, during the period under consideration, there is absolutely no documentary evidence on file in court to justify the discharge of such prisoners." The commission in their investigation duired into the cases of 123 prisoner who had been discharged illegally after mitment. Out of this number it was und that Magistrate Droege sat in 40 cound that Magistrate Droege sat in 40 cases, while Magistrate Wahle sat in 31. Droege was removed and Wahle resigned. Magistrate Cornell had 8 of these cases, Magistrate Steinert 7, Magistrate Kernochan 6, Magistrates Harris and Moss 4 each, Magistrates Barlow and Walsh 2 each and Magistrates Herrman and Crane 2 each. Thirty-five of the prisoners so released were old offenders who had been sentenced previously to the workhouse from two to ten times.

sentenced previously to the workhouse from two to ten times.

It is recommended that instead of police officers, civilians should be appointed as probation officers. These officers now include one sergeant at $1.500 a year, fifteen patrolmen at $1,400 a year each, together with eight female probation officers at $900 a year each. The present system, it is exlpained, is not only costly but deprives the Police Department of the men now detailed to the courts.

Concerning the work of the probation officers the commissioners report that they examined into the cases of 287 probationers and found that 182 were either not known at the addresses given or had given addresses which turned out to be churches, theatres, public parks and vacant lots, while one was the address of a police station. The report said

Further inquiry developed the fact that in most of the cases examined the homes of probationers were not visited by the probation officers, and consequently the probation officers, and to with the condi-latter could not be familiar with the conditions or influences, whether good or bad that surrounded their charges. This would appear to be a very necessary part of probation officer's duty, although the pro-bation rules adopted by the Board of Magistrates do not provide that such visits shall

Observations made show that in some cases the probationer's conduct at home was clearly such as to warrant a revocation of parole. Of this misbehavior the proon officers evidently knew nothing, or If they did no action was taken thereon. tion officer of misconduct on the part of he delinquent, but the officer never called at the home of this family to verify th

Observations made to gather information concerning the activities of male probation officers when the Magistrates to whom they were assigned were absent from court duty show that during such times very. little work in connection with the probation system was done by these officers. This demonstrates the lack of systematic control over probation officers in that when supposed to be officially employed their movements are unknown to any one other possibly the individual Magistrates to whom they are respectively assigned. "A day's work in one case observed con-stated of an afternoon spent in assorting probation cards at the central office of probation: in another leaving home at 1.25 P. M. and after spending fifteen minutes at the West Fifty-fourth street court attending the races at Gravesend racetrack; in still another, leaving home at 10 A. M. and occupying time until 1 P. M. attending to matters having no relation to the proba-tion system: in another, attending to family marketing and spending the greater par of the day at home or in the vicinity thereof

Among the recommendations made by Among the recommendations made by the commission are that in future all Magistrates' orders for the discharge of committed prisoners be presented at the main office of the Department of Correction; that prisoners be not released on such orders without the indorsement of the Commissioner of Correction; that civilians should be substituted for policement as probation officers; that a separate court room for the sessions of the night court be established and a night court created in the northern part of the city.

the Duchess and all the children were coming here in January and after visiting friends and relatives would start on a trip around the world by the way of OMAHA, Sept. 19.—President Taft will San Francisco and the Pacific. Mr. Zimmerman said that there was a great industrial revival in Ireland and that poverty was being swiftly abolished. The cultivation of the sugar beet was going on, and it was likely that Ireland soon would be helping to increase the world's sugar supply. Ralph M. Easley, chairman of the executive council of the National Civic Federation; the Rev. S. Ingraham were also passengers by the Celtic.

Mr. Easley said the time was ripe and the United States was the place for an international industrial congress and that he is confident that every foreign nation would join heartily in the project. He had talked with the labor leaders, particularly John Burns of England, and those of other countries about the subject in the street car company at the Central Cogregational Church of Ign., I the Central Cogregational Church of Brook-and they indorsed it. Some of the themes that would be considered in the congress would be the adjustment of working hours internationally, employers' liability, arbitration, old age pensions, trade agreements and employment bureaus. Europe generally was ahead of the United States in its treatment of the workers, he said. At the next meeting of the National Civic Federation on November 18 it would be urged to sanction the calling of an industrial congress. Mr. Easley said he had met Samuel Gompers in Europe and that he was a favorite with the foreign governments because of his opposition to revolutionary socialism.
